EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The importance of the social dimension of forestry in today's world need not be overly emphasized. With human populations exploding across the globe; the pressure on forests for meeting the needs of fuelwood, fodder, timber, and land has proportionately increased. The stress on natural ecosystems due to this anthropogenic pressure has assumed dimensions of war for the natural ecosystems and their myriad inhabitants. A recognition of the human dimension of forestry led to the implementation of Social & Community forestry programme in the 1970s and 1980s. Further recognition of the people's rights on forests and their role in forestry came in the form of the Joint Forest Management (JFM) Resolution in 1991. A decade and a half later, the Scheduled Tribes and other Forest Dwellers Act, 2006 was enacted, which further intensified this recognition of people's stake in the forests.

With this background, the Central Academy for State Forest Service (CASFOS), Burnihat under the aegis of Directorate of Forest Education (DFE) Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change conducted a two days online training programme for Non-Governmental Organizations and Community Based Organizations on the theme 'People and Forest Interface' on 22nd and 23rd September, 2021. The Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change, Government of India sponsored this training under the programme 'Training of other Stakeholders'. The training was conducted on virtual mode due to the current pandemic COVID-19 situation. More than 108 participants from 18 States/UTs across the country registered for this training and finally based on the criteria of 75% attendance, a certificate of participation was distributed to 41 participants from 18 States/UTs.

The training module on 'People and Forest Interface' was designed with the objective that properly informed and aware NGOs/CBOs will be able to exert a positive influence on the portrayal of forest and environmental issues to the society thereby helping to understand and appreciate the indispensability of people's participation in forest management initiatives. The module was developed with the experts' input on the subject.

The methodology followed was online training through the Microsoft Teams platform, wherein the participants were registered online through a registration form. Thereafter, all the registered participants were given a link to join the training sessions.

The Inaugural session was chaired by Mr. C. P. Marak, IFS (Rtd.),Ex-PCCF & HoFF, Government of Meghalaya. In his inaugural specah, Mr. C. P. Marak emphasized on role of NGOs and Community based Organization in bring People closer to forests and inculcate awareness among people in protection and conservation of forest Resources. He gave an overwiew of the changing scenario of Forests and wildlife conservation and management in the country. He appreciated good works of NGOs and Community organization in Conservation of Natural resources and also urged them to bridge the gap between forests and people.

The deliberations began with a session on Bamboo and Livelihood by Ms. K. M. Abharna, IFS, Director, BRTC, Chandrapur; Human-Wildlife Conflict- Role of NGO's in Conflict Resolution: Case study by Sh. Dipankar Ghosh, Director, Director, Wildlife & Habitats Programme, WWF-India; Role of NGOs in Citizen Science Initiative by Shri Narayan Sharma, Asstt. Professor, Cotton University, Guwahati. The second day of the training programme began with a session on Role of NGO's in Community Participation & Income generation activities: case study by Ms. Anshu Pragyan Das, DCF, Ecotourism, Odisha, followed by a session on Community Mobilization for rehabilitation of wild animals by Mr. Naveen Pandey, Deputy Director & Vety Advisor, The Corbett Foundation, Bokaghat. All the sessions were very informative and interactive.

Though the course was not residential and hence an important component of the training, involving interaction amongst the participants during leisure time was missing. However, this was compensated by the dedicated sessions wherein the participants shared their experiences.

The Valedictory session was chaired by Dr. C. Ramesh, IFS Principal, CASFOS. He emphasized on the need for voluntary and willful participation of communities which would help in conflict resolution over the limited natural resources. He exhorted the participants to work with communities as it was the most appropriate pathway for the sustainable growth of the country.

Resource persons were selected based on their experience in relevant topics and on feedbacks from the trainings conducted in the past. A total of Six resource persons conducted training sessions. The detailed time table showing session-wise topics and Resource Persons is enclosed as Annexure- 4.

The copies of the presentations made by the experts in each session were shared in soft copy to participants through the Whatsapp group.
